ANTIQUES FOR EVERYONE SPRING FAIR

7th - 10th April 2016

Halls 18-19, NEC, Birmingham B40 1NT

Antiques, art, decorative items and all kinds of rare and unusual objets d'art go on sale at the spring Antiques for Everyone event at the NEC, Birmingham from 7th - 10th April 2016.

Featuring more than 200 specialist dealers, the fair is a major event that brings together collectors, interior designers, decorators, home furnishers and leading dealers for four days of buying, selling, knowledge exchange and great enjoyment for all things cultural. With many thousands of exhibits for sale, at prices from less than £20 to more than £20,000, and added diversions such as a special feature exhibition and daily celebrity talks, the fair has plenty to offer. The fair is designed to have a wide appeal, for both novice and experienced connoisseurs, occasional collectors and anyone seeking inspiration for home design and decoration.

Now in its 31st year, Antiques for Everyone continues to expand its appeal with a greater range of decorative, 20th century and selected contemporary pieces. Held at the hub of the UK's transport links and within easy reach of people from the north, south, east and west, the fair is a major assembly point for dealers, collectors and interior furnishers.

Exhibitors are divided into two distinct sections, allowing dealers from across the trade to participate, taking either room-set style or smaller booth displays. Exhibits are vetted by specialist panels of experts for date and condition and to ensure all items for sale are correctly labelled. The huge opening day queue regularly exceeds 2,000 trade buyers and private collectors, all eager to discover new stock presented for the first time.

English period furniture is always sought after. Melody Antiques take a large stand to showcase English provincial oak and country pieces, including farmhouse dressers, cupboards, tables, coffer and sets of ladder-back chairs while Mark Seabrook Antiques returns with rare metalwork, early armchairs and corner cupboards. Jeroen Markies specialises in Art deco furniture, lamps, and decorative items while Scandinavian by Design join the fair with mid-20th century furniture and lighting.

Arts & Crafts, Art Deco and Art Nouveau furniture, statuary, figurines, mirrors, lighting, clocks, silver, ceramics, glass and other pieces featuring on a number of specialists stands, notably Hickmet Fine Arts, Marion David Decorative Arts specialising in silver and bronzes, Titus Omega with silver, Deco Dave with lighting and James Strang with Scottish furniture and paintings.

Buyers looking for period clocks and barometers will find Edward Burd and Kembery Antique Clocks with a variety of English and French examples, and Alan Walker Antiques with barometers.

Fine silver features from a number of the country's major specialists, notably Mary Cooke Antiques, Jack Shaw & Co; Cotswold Collectables and Highland Antiques.

Jewellery is especially popular and there are numerous specialist dealers including Shapiro & Co, Plaza, Henry Nicholls & Sons Antiques, T. Robert, Anderson Jones, S.& A.Thompson and Trivette, among many others.

The fair is also very popular with pottery, porcelain and glass collectors who can buy from no fewer than fifty respected dealers. Early English pottery features on the stand of Bottlebrook Antiques and Roger de Ville; while David & Sally March Antiques, Jupiter Antiques, Drove House Antiques, Catherine Hunt Oriental and Julian Eade all specialise in fine 18th and 19th century porcelain. Andrew Muir shows a superb range of Clarice Cliff and 20th century pieces and Wayne Hopton specialises in Moorcroft. Brian Watson Antique Glass and M. & D. Moir show glass, ancient and modern.

Art is strongly represented by galleries with everything from 18th century portraits to contemporary illustrators. These include Benton Fine Art and Ashleigh House Fine Art with Victorian and Continental paintings; Art World Gallery, specialising in contemporary works; Graham Bentley Watercolours with 19th and 20th century works on paper and The Blackbrook Gallery with farming and agricultural subjects. Carnes Fine Art will be joining the fair for the first time.

Among the many other specialists will be Hazlehurst Sculpture & Antiques, specialising in French bronze sculpture; Wigs on the Green with miniature portraits and silhouettes; Red Kite Tribal Rugs and Paul Eisler Antique Maps.
