SELECTED EXHIBITS

An extremely rare Art Deco period Clarice Cliff 'May Avenue' Bonjour tea for two service, circa 1933.
£11,500.

To be shown by Andrew Muir, Art Deco ceramics specialist from the West Midlands.

A rare and unusual map of North Wales which was printed by lithography. It was drawn on stone by the Victorian landscape artist J.J. Dodd R.A. from a design prepared by Hugh Hughes.

The map was published by H. Humphreys, Castle Square, Caernarvon in about 1854. North Wales is represented in the shape of an old woman carrying a sack on her back. The key beneath the title lists the region's towns, lakes, rivers, mountains and lighthouses.

This map is rare and very difficult to acquire and in very good condition. Approx 23cms by 30cms.
£1450.00.

To be shown by B & B Williams Antique Maps from Pembrokeshire.

A superb and highly-sought after Rolex Daytona watch, dating from 1979.

Named after the famous Florida racecourse, the "Daytona" is the Rolex brand's most iconic watch. Sought after by watch collectors all over the world for its clear and timeless design. Dated 1979, the watch is in excellent condition.

£42,000. From Timewise Vintage Watches of London.
NEW EXHIBITOR AT AFE

An interesting Noah's Ark by the Lord Roberts Workshop, of stencilled softwood and painted in green and grey, containing a number of original animals as well as Noah & wife. With its original printed label to the underside of the ark lid. Circa 1920.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who won the Victoria Cross in 1857, had long campaigned for more to be done for ex-servicemen, especially those who had been disabled. He took a keen interest in the Workshops and became one of the Trustees. Following his death in 1914 while visiting troops in France it was decided, as a memorial to him, to expand the workshops and to name them after him. By 1920 there were eleven Workshops around the country producing a wide variety of goods including basket ware, toys, beds and bedding and all types of furniture.

Length 14 1/2 inches 37 cm in length.

£195.00

A large and important Japanese cloisonne enamel hawk vase by Kumeno Teitaro (1865-1939).

£18,750.

To be shown by Steve Sly Japanese Art from Dorset.

Described by exhibitor Mark Seabrook as:

"A truly stunning piece of 18th century Welsh vernacular furniture, this primitive child's chair is made from ash, oak and fruitwood, and has patinated to give a glorious colour that is so attractive to collectors. Made in Wales, this chair is known as a primitive comb back chair and doesn't come any better!"

Cica 1780-C1800.

£1075.00

To be shown by Mark Seabrook Antiques from Cambridgeshire.

A rare solid aluminium sculpture on a marble base of an Art Deco style locomotive is entitled "Streamliner". No. 11 of 25 pieces only, sculpted in 1997 and presented to Lloyd Dorfman (founder & CEO of Travelex by Barclays Capital). Base length 61cm, 27cm high.

The streamliner locomotives were part of the whole ethos of Art Deco when speed and travel was so exciting. There were lots of design styling excersies to smoothe the lines of cars, aircraft, ships & locomotives to make them go faster.

This design was by Richard Dreyfuss for the New York central Line & first hit the rails in 1938, operating right through the war years.

The style of this piece is a very good example of what was known as "vanishing point" style, and the object appears to disappear into the distance. other examples can be compared to this by the wonderful posters from AM Cassandra of Steamship & Pierre Fix-Masseau's "Exactitude" locomotive.

The Streamliner Locomotive is for sale with DecoDave from South Humberside, Stand K36 for £5950.00.

A charming Japanese Edo period ivory netsuke of a puppy dog cluthching a ball.

£2,650

To be shown by Steve Sly Japanese Art from Dorset.

A rarer twin fusee dropdial wall clock.

The rosewood case with fine inlaid mother of pearl detailing. Hand carved walnut side decorations. Pendulum aperture to the bottom of the case with a brass surround. A twin fusee movement of 8-day duration striking the hours on a bell.

A 12" painted dial signed 'Stevenson, Leicester'.

Stevenson of Leicester is listed in Loomes' 'Watchmakers and Clockmakers of The World' book as working from 1855-1864.

£1375.00
